

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

INTERNATIONAL URANIUM FILM FESTIVAL NORTH AMERICAN TOUR 2025 LAUNCHES ON NAVAJOLAND, NOVEMBER 13-14, 2025

CONTACT:

Anna Rondon, New Mexico Social Justice & Equity Institute
505-879-3666, anna@nmsocialjustice.org

Norbert Suchanek, International Uranium Film Festival
norbert.suchanek@uraniumfilmfestival.org

Window Rock, AZ, USA - The International Uranium Film Festival (IUFF) is proud to announce the highly anticipated North American Tour 2025 kickoff, set to take place November 13-14 at the Navajo Nation Museum in Window Rock, Arizona. Showcasing an array of compelling films and exploring the detrimental impacts of the uranium fuel chain, the festival promises to captivate audiences with its thought-provoking narratives and powerful storytelling. Organizers of the IUFF Window Rock edition believe these films are a necessary part of the ongoing resistance to nuclear, specifically for public health and harm reduction efforts.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- "WAYS OF KNOWING" - 2025, Director: Kayla Briët, 23 mins.
- "TO USE A MOUNTAIN" - 2025, Director Casey Carter, 99 min
- "UNDER THE CLOUD" - 2023, Director: Pedro Reyes Alvarez 24 min.

Uranium is the fuel for both nuclear weapons and nuclear energy. As 2025 marks the 80th anniversary of the first atomic bombings at the Trinity Site, Hiroshima, and Nagasaki, the world faces a new Manhattan Project that includes nuclear modernization of weapons and the fast-tracking of uranium mining for nuclear-powered AI (artificial intelligence) datacenters.

The IUFF recognizes all radiation victims. Downwinders of nuclear weapons test sites and nuclear energy facilities are all impacted by environmental contamination that creates undue health risks which can be genetically passed on to future generations.

The IUFF is a space for everyone who supports a nuclear-free future! We invite all to come together to view original films and to meet with affected community members, organizations and activists working toward protection from radiation risks, protection of our lands and water, and protection of all Peoples worldwide.

"This event is vital in shedding light on the impact of uranium on our communities. It serves not only to raise awareness but also to inspire hope, healing, and a path forward for future generations." - Jayme Yancy, New Mexico Social Justice & Equity Institute

"The International Uranium Film Festival is an opportunity for the voices of those impacted by all stages of the nuclear fuel chain to share their stories and inspire others in their communities and beyond to take action." - Ava Curtis, Multicultural Alliance for a Safe Environment

"As Indigenous people, we have always known the power of storytelling. Through stories we create community and pathways toward healing and justice. The International Uranium Film Festival (IUFF) is a great example of how we can bridge uranium impacted communities together through films. Our voice is power and together we can make a change." - Krystal Curley, Indigenous Lifeways

"In order to combat nuclear colonialism and the lie that nuclear energy is a clean, safe solution to climate change, we must be educated about the toxic reality of nuclear and the harms caused by the entire uranium fuel cycle. Films are a great way to bring our stories to life, and the IUFF is an accessible venue for reuniting locally and connecting our struggles with the international community." - Leona Morgan, Haul No!

FOR MORE INFO:

For more information about the International Uranium Film Festival 2025, also known as the "Atomic Age Cinema Fest," please visit:

<https://uraniumfilmfestival.org/en/window-rock-uranium-film-festival-2025>.

Contact Norbert Suchanek, International Uranium Film Festival

norbert.suchanek@uraniumfilmfestival.org

Anna Rondon, New Mexico Social Justice & Equity Institute

505-879-3666, anna@nmsocialjustice.org

For more information about the 2025 IUFF Window Rock program, ticketing or to sponsor by donation, please contact Anna Rondon: 505-879-3666, anna@nmsocialjustice.org.